Painting On Our Own Canvas:

Understanding and Dismantling Internalized Racism

a

Diverse and Revolutionary Unitarian Universalist Multicultural Ministries

(DRUUMM)

West Coast Regional Conference

March 19-21, 2010

Throop Unitarian Universalist Church
Pasadena, California

www.throopchurchuu.org

Each day, we receive messages about how we should think of each other and ourselves from the White dominant culture. These messages not only inform our self-image and judgments of others, but also our sense of who we are, culturally and personally. How do we build People of Color community in the Unitarian Universalist movement that help us be true to ourselves and our own cultures? Through workshops, discussion, and community building, together we will endeavor to strip of these layers of externally imposed paint & better understand this internalized racism. In doing so, we will begin the life-giving yet difficult work of applying brush to canvas to reclaim the authentic works of art underneath it all. This West Coast DRUUMM regional conference will provide opportunities to explore this important topic while we engage in building community with each other. Come and join us in doing this work and having a great time while growing more fully into our humanity!
